New Exclusive Aviation Location Attracts The Attention of Aviation Community and Colorado's Elite Private Jet Owners

Excitement Builds as XJet™ at Centennial Airport Prepares for July 2007 Soft Opening

Centennial, CO, May 21, 2007- Excitement builds as XJet, the world's most innovative and exclusive private aviation program, nears completion of the Phase I construction of their world class aviation location at Centennial Airport- the country's second busiest general aviation location south of Denver.

The first phase, scheduled to open in early July 2007, has attracted the attention of Colorado's elite private jet owners by offering a revolutionary private aviation business model that elevates the private jet experience by providing the industry's finest services and amenities while greatly reducing operation costs such as jet fuel.

Construction of Phase II is underway and has an expected completion date of spring of 2008. XJet's exclusive aviation location includes four state-of-the-art hangars totaling over 90,000 square feet which will hold 25-35 aircraft plus 6,000 square feet of luxurious office suites.

When all three phases are complete, the 18 acre location will feature a host of amenities, most of which are unique to an airport environment. XJet's Programme Participants will enjoy a plush lounge, library, fine art gallery, conference rooms, underground vehicle parking and a five-star restaurant. World-renowned chef Bruno Breusch will operate the restaurant, a portion of which will be open to the public.
